2. Skegness Aquarium Young Persons Suitability Disclaimer (under 18's Only)

The recreation of Sub-Aqua is participated by thousands of people annually and is enjoyed by many. However, the activity does pose some risks, as is the case with all extreme sports. There are significant control measures in place, as part of the Skegness Aquarium Sub-Aqua Experiences, to reduce these risks significantly.

Sub-Aqua can pose a pressure-related risk to the lungs, sinuses and/or ears. Also, there is an inherent risk of panic which can cause serious injury or, in the very worst case, death. Whilst Skegness Aquarium promotes the 'diving for all' approach, there are some considerations to factor in when dealing with participants aged 16 or younger. The human body develops at differing rates from one individual to another. Skegness Aquarium works closely with the British Sub Aqua Club (BSAC) to develop a minimum age bracket for all experiences. This minimum age bracket allows participants to enjoy activities from the age of 6 and 11 for the BSAC Shark Snorkelling Ranger Experience or 10 and above for the BSAC Shark Educational Dive.

When making such a decision it is important to consider the comfort levels of the participant(s) when in water. The use of breathing apparatus can cause a claustrophobic sensation in rare cases, this sensation can be heightened by a child with unsuitable emotional readiness. Both the BSAC Shark Snorkelling Ranger Experience and the BSAC Shark Educational Dive are conducted in Salt Water with temperatures ranging from 22°C to 28°C which cannot be avoided due to animal welfare obligations. It is essential to consider the physical readiness of the participant(s) regarding thermal characteristics.

If in any doubt when evaluating the readiness of participant(s) then please make contact with Skegness Aquarium to discuss. Further consultation can be made with a local GP or physician regarding any medical history and/or suitability for the activity

I/We understand that all responsibility for the respective experience is placed upon us as the parent/guardian of the child. I/We have read the above information and successfully evaluated the physical and emotional readiness of the participant(s). Should the participant fail to complete an experience then this does not classify as a refund, as per the Skegness Aquarium Terms and Conditions. If the participant(s) fail to complete the experience then the child must be minded and collected from the Dive Training Area
